

PRESS RELEASE – For Immediate Release

SchoolFusion Creates Data Integration Task Force

Denver, Colo. [February 24, 2010] SchoolFusion, an award-winning provider of K-12 website and communication solutions, recently restructured to create a dedicated Data Integration Task Force in an effort to manage tremendous client growth. The Data Integration group will be led by Wayne Stillman as Director of Data Integration, and Drew Weaver as Data Integration Project Manager. Data Integration will be a division of the Engineering Department with additional purviews extending to Sales, Implementation and Support.

Wayne Stillman was hired as an Engineer in January 2007 and assigned the task of establishing district wide data integration services including: standard bulk delimited data importation services, custom Web Services data integration, and developing a Schools Interoperability Framework (SIF) agent. Under Wayne's direction, SchoolFusion was able to bring automated data integration solutions to over 5,000 schools in just three short years.

Drew Weaver was hired in 2007 as a Support Representative and was quickly promoted to Implementation Specialist due to his ability to manage customers with high-level technical needs and aspirations. In his new position as Data Integration Project Manager, Drew will work closely with Wayne and the clients to ensure that customer expectations are met on time and within the scope of the project.

The SchoolFusion Data Integration team's immediate plans include:

- Create education outreach programs for current customers to ensure that they are taking full advantage of existing services.
- Establish detailed Standard Operating Procedures to streamline district data integration setup, school year rollovers and support efforts.
- Host internal training seminars to improve support and to aid Implementation and Sales in their efforts.
